

DANIEL MONOLOGUE

Aboard the Apollo, Daniel stands at the door to Cassie's cell, refusing to let his twin brother Bryan past. Bryan holds him at gunpoint, but for the first time, Daniel stands his ground.

DANIEL

Every time, I stand to the side! I walk in your footsteps. Little to your big. But I know I am more than that. Always everyone jokes that we share a brain... but I maybe think they're right. I think I am the heart to your ambition. I am the compass that you were born without. So when you lose yourself, when you find you have forgotten our mother's perfume, I will remind you that it smelled like pears and sunshine. And that she sprayed it on her apron just for us.

In another life and time, brother, you could be a king. Or a monster, or a murderer, but not now. In this life you are Bryan Companye, my only family, my big brother... and if you want to hurt my captain you will have to kill me first.
